SUPPLY CHAIN TRACEABILITY

All of these notions are summarized by the Controlled Supply Chain Certification we use for checking and tracking every single step of the process, from the feeding of animals to the dispatch of our products.

An example : traceability of Grana Padano

Casein label from 1996

We can go back to all the data regarding

...the time passed in the warehouse ...

...in the brine ...

... in the copper vats

... during the process ...

...during natural creaming ...

... the quality of the milk used ...

... till to the farmers
and the feed used.

At the end ... we can go back to:

- Day, month and year of production
- Lot identification
- Check all the production's data
- See who made that particular cheese
- With what milk (Quality data)
- From what farmer
- What feed the cows ate
- When and who made that animal feed

So we can:

- Control the process
 - ↳ to improve continuously
- Control the chain
 - ↳ to increase security
